"Idea of Arbitration", Jan Paulsson:

"The idea of arbitration is that of binding resolution of disputes accepted with serenity by those who bear its consequences because of their special trust in chosen decision makers."

(Oxford, 2014, p. 1)

NEW YORK CONVENTION ON THE RECOGNITION AND ENFORCEMENT OF FOREIGN ARBITRAL AWARDS

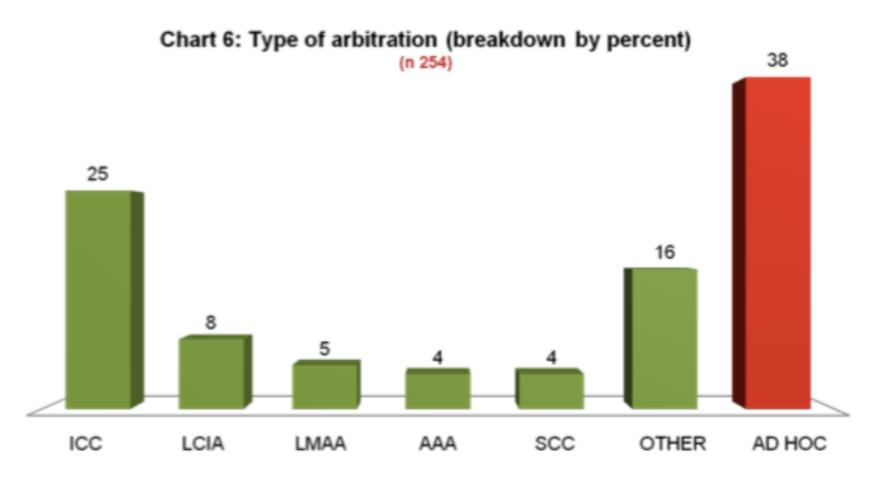

Article I

- 1) This Convention shall apply to the recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards made in the territory of a State other than the State where the recognition and enforcement of such awards are sought, and arising out of differences between persons, whether physical or legal. It shall also apply to arbitral awards not considered as domestic awards in the State where their recognition and enforcement are sought
- 2) The term "arbitral awards" shall include not only awards made by arbitrators appointed for each case but also those made by permanent arbitral bodies to which the parties have submitted.

CIArb 2011: Cost of Arbitration Survey

- The survey consisted of ten questions with multiple sub- categories designed to elicit responses about the amounts parties claimed, the amounts arbitral tribunals awarded and the costs spent on various items.
- Information on 254 arbitrations conducted between 1991 and 2010 was considered to be useful for statistical analysis.
- Over 50% of respondents were from the UK (32%) and the rest of Europe (20%). The remaining 48% came from Asia, the Middle East, Africa, North America, Australasia and other locations.
- Over 20 arbitral institutions were represented in the sample.

Queen Mary/PwC Survey of International Arbitration 2006

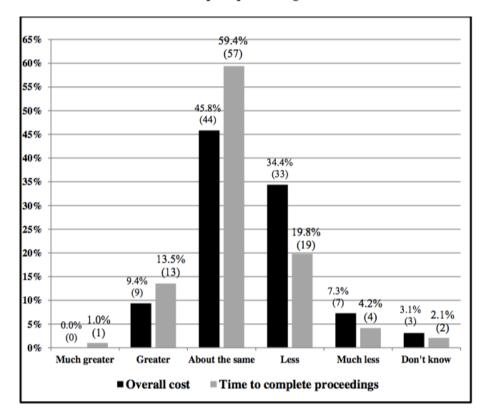

"The 24% of respondents that stated their organisations prefer ad hoc arbitration proceedings are primarily from corporations with a gross annual turnover of more than US$5 billion. In many cases, these corporations have large, sophisticated in-house legal departments with experience of managing arbitration proceedings." (p.12)

Since 2008, the Queen Mary Survey has not asked how many respondents prefer ad hoc arbitration. It has never asked, why respondents favour ad hoc arbitration or how satisfied they are with ad hoc arbitration.

- Q: Have you served as an arbitrator in an "ad hoc" arbitration, in which the parties were responsible for determining and agreeing on their own arbitration procedures rather than relying on the procedures of an arbitral institution?
- A: 73.3% Yes 26.7% No
- Q: Have you served as an arbitrator under "non-administered" arbitration rules (such as, for example, those of CPR or UNCITRAL)?

A: 80.9% Yes 19.1 % No

Q: For those instances where you have served as an arbitrator in an "ad-hoc" arbitration, how did those arbitrations compare to arbitrations conducted under the procedures of an arbitral institution, in terms of overall cost and time to complete proceedings?

Q: For those instances where you have served as an arbitrator under "non-administered" arbitration rules, how did those arbitrations compare to administered arbitrations in terms of overall cost and time to complete proceedings?

Chart 33: What would be the most effective way to 'regulate' arbitrator conduct?

Percentage of respondents

Through instruments issued by arbitral institutions

Through a code of conduct by a professional institution or body for arbitrators (such as the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators)

> Through databases that provide parties with information about an arbitrator's performance in past cases

Through guidelines such as the IBA Guidelines on Conflicts of Interest

Through a new transnational body dealing with conduct of arbitrators

Through requirements of certification in competency and ethics

Malcolm Gladwell: "David and Goliath"

"We spend a lot of time thinking about the ways that prestige and resources and belonging to elite institutions make us better off. We don't spend enough time thinking about the ways in which those kinds of material advantages limit our options."

Little, Brown & Co, 2013 p.36
